With Islamic teaching these Sufis also worked on the several institutes of the education. They build large no of Madarsas, which were jointly with the masjid. It was a new patron of education, not only in Dera ghazi Khan but also all over the Punjab. In these Madarsas Quran and Ahdees were not only promoted but with the help of eminent intellectual, the traditional education, the other branches of studies as the law of Shriya, the orient knowledge, Sufi Fiqar and even for tolerance and corporation non-Muslims were also entered for education. Sufism emphases on the teaching to build the fundamental of society through Islamic education spiritual thought conscious of divine power, piety, equality, brotherhood and humanistic behavior. With Madarsas and masjids Sufis also established several Khankas, which was most important community center they were also given the name of “Jammat Khana35” where large no of people were gathered and they attentionally listen the speeches of Sufis. These Khanka were also run with the physical amount granted by some rulers or the followers. Among the Sufi services of the society Khanka has its role. Khanka seems as a social welfare center and it was the symbol of close relationship between the peers and followers. Here people state worships and learnt the knowledge. In education Sufis literature has also its own important. It was as an academic curriculum which based on tales, advices and jurist though a biographical literature. It was a code of life principle of life as famous as see-ul-Auliya, Fawaid-ul-Fawood, Rahat-ul-Qaloob, Mirat-ul-Ashiqeen and etc. that literature was totally Shriya the thought of surfs in the society36. Other services as they create collaborate and harmony among the people for this, khanka was a shelter for the poor and needy people. People of low caste, minorities also seek shelter here. It was the spiritual center for the society. Hunger and needy depressed were the member of this community. For them, many things were free, a free kitchen, and residence were available for them. With this facility a free education were also provided them. Sufis try to uplifting the society on equal bases and they had been successful to abolish the old traditions and norms which based on superstitious or conservative approach. Sufis successfully spread their teaching on grass rout level as love, hormone, brotherhood and equalities are the common qualities of Islam. The impact of this slogan looked everywhere on the socio-cultural pictures of the society. Its look that some Sufis establish the madaras but some did not establish. Who did not establish the Madarsas, the give the education to their follower through gathering which found in the Khanka we called that Majlis.

Health:
With the religious education these Sufis were also well aware from the contemporary knowledge of the time, several one were also have a great command not only on Islamic jurist prudence but also they were well known about medical because they learnt medical in Madarsas as a curriculum and they knew about the important herbs as well as its usages. Some time with the spiritual cure they also use these herbs in the matter of health. In this sense they also influence on the society in the matter of health. The common people of the society also believe that to visit the khanka or shrines as a cure in the matter of several disease.37 So, it was a positive element for the society that they had recovered through the belief. That these Sufis are also blessing at the difficult time of fetal disease. This act was also be important and a relaxation for the common man regarding economic problems because such type of medical treatment was completely free so with religious motivation Sufis also accommodate the poor and needy people in the matter of education as well as health. Even today the shrines of these pious Sufis are thought a source of pleasure and comfort during hard time. People visit to these shrine for their mental and spiritual self-satisfaction.

Residence: Almost famous Sufis constructed Khankas and with the Khankas big hall and room were constructed for the poor people and needy followers. Actually Sufis were promoting a life as Ashab-e-Sufa was living. So, they were the guardian of such people and followers which were not only poor and needy but also they were hopeless and helpless so they provide the residence and also food free of cast. At the shrine the rooms are present and the Langer khana provide the food the people who came here from different area and stay there. The people stay there till they had got their desire. Till that time they stay at these rooms and took food form the Langer Khana. But some people who have no one in this world they came here and stay at the shrine and do the work for shrine and make the part of darbar.
These rooms were their resident.

Food:
The arrangement of the food on large scale all the poor and needy followers were served that food. The arrangement of food was also assign to the rich followers who granted corn, sheep and goats and other thing. The food was every time available and served as Langer.
So, the follower of the area or the passengers are even some time people visited to shrine at the time of appetite because they are found the meal free of cast. So to uplift the society it was the important for the people to meet them food. In Sufi influence the free residence and food was the also an important factor of the well-being society. The rich disciples when came to their Sufis, in these there are not only rich people the ruler also when they came to shrine or came to meet with the Sufi they gifted a lot of things to them as known as “Nazrana”. The Sufis use these in the public work. They had also started the Langer khana where many people got the food who had no source of income and money for the meal. He also eat the meal from the Langer khana and all the people of his institution also eat from there. Some of the people eat this food for the sacrament. And mostly people came on the shrine and they distributed the food in the people this is also called Langer.

Finance:
There are two type of financial help to the people form the Sufis. The physical aid we can call it alms. The Sufis got the gifted from the rich disciples and the rulers they did not save them to their self they distribute these to the needy people. The rulers strongly belief on the Sufis so they came to them for the comforts and also for the discussion about the issues of their governance. When they came to meet them they had not come with empty hand. They took lot of gifts for the Sufis in which money and costly clothes and jewelry. Some of rulers donate the land to the Sufis.
The Sufis use these gifts for the society development and they give these things to the needy peoples and their disciples. Due to that people gave the title to them. They fulfill the required of the people and people know that they cannot come back empty from their shrines. The other type is financial Aid. We can call it Qarz-e-Husna. The mean of Qarz-e-Husna is that the loan which the give the people if they returned them back when they became able otherwise they did not return the Sufi had no demand from them about that. It is famous about Hazrat Sakhi Sarwar he distributed his dowry in his disciples. Sufis did not save the things. They took the things from one hand and distribute these for the other hand.
They trust on Allah that He made them for the public service. And thousands of people came to him for the financial help. He helped the people and when they return the amount that give to another needy person not use for his personal interest.
Construction of Non-Violence Society:
The major objective of the Sufis was that they construct the non-violence society. It can be seen during the partition of India. Dera Ghazi Khan was the only city in which the people did not kill the others, they save the life of other people. It was the impact of Sufi teaching that they respect each other. They did not think about that the people belongs from which religious the Sufi built the love, harmony and brotherhood between them and due to that they respect each other. The disturbance and violence of the society was finish and balance society emerged. The Sufi education based on the non-violence. They only teach to promote the peace in the society. And that society grows up which peacefully work and the people respect to each other without any conflict.
